

I am strongly opposed to the National Association of Broadcasters' initiative to restrict XM satellite radio programming - specifically, traffic and weather services. In addition to the technology, satellite radio is a medium that should, like local radio stations, serve the public good. Offering traffic and weather information places this particular medium above the level of "just entertainment" and builds value into subscription fees. Please give this matter the consideration it deserves by listening to the subscribers and users of these services, vice an organization is composed of members whose interest favors money over the needs of its listeners. Thank you.
